

RMAP Argument on Indigenous Resource Rights: Thursday 10 April

Friday, 23 October 2009

The roundtable discussion meeting brought together individuals from civil society and government agencies, as well as researchers and representatives of community level institutions to examine the state of play with implementation of Philippines' Ancestral Domain legislation 10 years after its enactment. The overwhelming sense from this meeting was that, for a range of reasons, efforts to secure indigenous rights to land were not making a tangible difference to poverty in indigenous communities. (Click here)